

Nomi Seltzer

Nomi Seltzer is a Foreign Service Officer with the U.S. Department of State. She currently serves as an Arctic Affairs Officer with the Department's Bureau of Oceans and International Environmental and Scientific Affairs, where she works with the U.S. Senior Arctic Official and other key stakeholders to formulate Arctic policy and to represent U.S. interests at the Arctic Council. Prior to working on the Arctic, Nomi spent her Foreign Service career serving at U.S. missions overseas in Pakistan, Slovenia, Iraq, Hong Kong, Germany and the Philippines. She holds a Master's degree in foreign affairs from Georgetown University and a Bachelor's degree from Washington University in St. Louis.